

Jordan Carter
InternetNZ

Jordan served as InternetNZ's Policy Director until April 2011. He led their policy and advocacy research programme and is keenly interested in every area of Internet policy. He worked at InternetNZ from 2003 in a range of policy roles, and prior to that briefly at the NZ Parliament. He holds a first class honours degree in political studies from Victoria University of Wellington, and undergraduate degrees in geography and economics from The University of Auckland.
