

Vernita D. Harris

Department of Commerce's National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA)

Vernita D. Harris is the Deputy Associate Administrator of the Office of International Affairs within the Department of Commerce's National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA). NTIA serves as the principal policy advisor to the President on communications and information policy matters as well as the federal radio frequency spectrum manager. OIA advocates U.S. policy perspectives in a variety of international fora including, the International Telecommunication Union (ITU), the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (ITSO), the International Mobile Satellite Organization (IMSO), the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation Telecommunications Working Group (APEC TEL) and the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN). Ms. Harris serves as the Contracting Officer's Technical Representative (COTR) for the Internet Assigned Numbers Authority (IANA) functions contract. Currently, Ms. Harris is leading NTIA's procurement process for the IANA functions.

Ms. Harris has extensive international experience negotiating treaty and non-treaty issues related to Internet Governance and international spectrum management. Ms. Harris has been an active participant in the following International organizations particularly, the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) activities such as the ITU Plenipotentiary and Council, the ITU-R study groups, the Radio Advisory Group, the Radiocommunication Assembly, World Radiocommunication Conference (WRC), and ITU Development Sector.

She has a Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration and Minor in Management, from Trinity College, Washington, D.C.